

You are standing on sacred ground. On February 14, 1781 ferry boats laden with the soldiers of Nathanael Greene's American army crossed from the opposite shore in front of you to this side of the Dan River. Having reached the river ahead of the British army of Lord Cornwallis, Greene's army forced the retreat of Cornwallis toward Yorktown and surrender.